Local veterans and their supporters attended a recognition and dinner at Madison's historic Brown Gymnasium on Thursday night ahead of other ceremonies and events on the Veterans Day holiday on Friday.

Veterans Day programs begin with dinner at Brown Gym

BY BOB DEMAREE

A celebration honoring veterans on Thursday evening at the Brown Gym was the first of this year's many Veterans Day events in Jefferson County.

"Veterans Day is a day we set aside to thank and honor all those who have served and are still serving," said Madison Mayor Bob Courtney, who added "our men and women are still fighting across the globe, and serve our community in so many ways. Whenever there is a disaster our military is always there providing assistance and help."

"The city of Madison is proud to fly the American flag all across the city," Courtney added, noting "the flag symbolizes what this country stands for, and the freedom we live and die for. It inspires us, and even for some it divides us ... it's honor to be among those who have served the country in the military."

Ben Flint, elected this week to serve as Jefferson County Sheriff beginning in January, said, "I can't say enough good things about the veterans and what they do for our country and for our community."

Flint, a veteran himself of the US Coast Guard, said how proud he is of veterans "who have served the country and have provided an amazing place to live, to raise our children and be proud to be Americans."

Madison Police Chief John Wallace said, "Veterans Day is my favorite day of the year" because in a troubled world it is the efforts of the veterans that "makes me think everything is going to be OK."

Local veteran Dave Adams (right) and Jefferson County Veterans Council Chairman Larry Jones welcome local veterans, supporters and state and local officials to Thursday's Veterans Day celebration at Madison's historic Brown Gym on Broadway. The program included a meal, music and fellowship as well as an introduction of local veterans with their branch of service and speakers recognizing and thanking them for their service.

CAB holds its final meeting

Board will be terminated and assets liquidated

BY BOB DEMAREE

After more than 20 years in existence, the local Cable Advisory Board held its last meeting Thursday after ordinances were adopted by the County Commissioners, Hanover Town Council and Madison City Council to terminate the board and liquidate its assets.

The board, officially formed through an interlocal agreement on Sept. 5, 2001, won't officially be disbanded until the ordinance is also adopted by the County Council, which tabled action at its October meeting. However, Thursday night's CAB meeting was the final meeting to be videoed under the auspices of that advisory board.

MCS board adopts pay raises across the board

BY BOB DEMAREE

Facing teacher shortages and challenges in hiring enough staff, Madison Consolidated Schools took steps Wednesday to approve pay increases for all administrators, teachers and staff.

Madison School Board formally approved a collective bargaining agreement with the Madison Teachers Association last week along with pay increases for classified hourly, classified salaried, administrators and certified salaried employees.

MCS Superintendent Dr. Teresa Brown said that as part of the annual teacher contract negotiations, district staff looked at the overall compensation model, and made changes to better compete for talent.

"We are so excited to be able to offer all of our employees increased salaries," Brown said. "Our school district is a major employer in our

Bedford man pulled from Ohio River after fleeing MPD

First responders were dispatched to the Ohio River shortly before 8 a.m. on Thursday to a report of a man jumping into the river while fleeing Madison police. Water rescuers from the U.S. Coast Guard and local fire departments responded by boat and officers from local police agencies responded by land to pull the man from the river and transport him from the City of Madison boat ramp to the Norton King's Daughters' Hospital Emergency Room by ambulance.

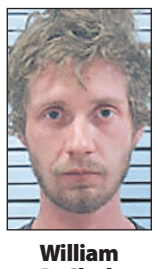
A Trimble County man was rescued from the Ohio River on Thursday after jumping into the water while fleeing from Madison Police near the intersection of Jefferson Street and Vaughn Drive in downtown Madison.



William R. Clark

William R. Clark, 28, Bedford, Kentucky, was pulled from the river by first responders about a mile downstream and transported to the Norton King's Daughters' Health Emergency Room for observation.

Madison Patrolman Kyle Lane made contact with Clark at about 7:45 a.m. on Thursday near the intersection of Vaughn Drive and Jefferson Street and a status check revealed that Clark was wanted on an active warrant for Operating a Motor Vehicle While Intoxicated. Lane approached Clark to take him into custody, but Clark fled toward the Ohio River on foot and jumped in.

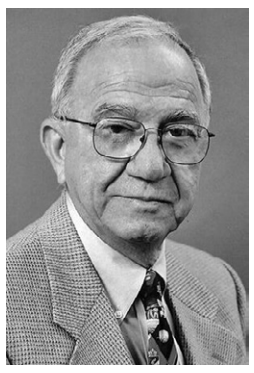
Let Us Pause To Honor The Memory Of

Mr. Clifford "Burch" Johnson, Sr.



Clifford "Burch" Johnson, Sr, formerly of Madison, Indiana passed away peacefully on October 10, 2022, at Baptist Hospital in Little Rock, Arkansas. Burch was born in Stateline, Mississippi on August 2, 1936. He was the son of Herbert and Ruth Burch Johnson and was raised by his Uncle Sylvester Johnson and his wife Ida Mae. Burch grew up in Memphis, Tennessee where he met and married his sweetheart, Jeanne "Jackie" Wasson. This 65-year union was blessed with two children, Cliff and Kem. Burch was a 1955 graduate of Whitehaven High School in Memphis, Tennessee. He was a proud graduate of Memphis State University where he played basketball and baseball during his freshman year. Burch valued education. In 1967, Burch completed his Business Administration degree after attending evening classes for 12 years while he worked to support his wife and young children. After receiving his college degree, Burch moved his family to Madison, Indiana when he accepted the promotion as Treasurer with Dover Corporation/Rotary Lift Division. While in Madison, Burch enjoyed volunteering for many organizations. He helped found the first organized Little League baseball and football programs in Madison, and coached numerous baseball, football, and basketball teams. Burch also served on the City of Madison Park Board, Madison Booster Club, and the First National bank board. He was among key supporters who were instrumental in the development of the Warren R. Rucker Sports complex where Burch has a baseball field named in his honor. In 1984, Burch and Jackie moved back to Memphis when Burch became the President of Rotary Lift. Burch always took pride that he had worked his way up from Mailroom Clerk to President. Throughout his 32-year career with Rotary Lift, Burch always cherished the people he worked with and the friendships he formed, especially during the years his family lived in Madison. Burch was also a partner with CBJ Properties in Madison for 28 years. Burch enjoyed traveling, golfing, boating and water skiing with his family on the Ohio River and lakes in Kentucky. Burch later held several consulting positions in Nashville, Tennessee, Jacksonville, Florida, Bay Springs, Mississippi, Laurel, Mississippi and Memphis, Tennessee. Upon retirement in 1998, Burch and Jackie settled in Maumelle, Arkansas. In 2001, Burch came out of retirement, campaigned door to door in his community of 20,000 and became the first elected Mayor of Maumelle for 2 terms. He later served on the Maumelle City Council from 2009-2014. Burch continued his passion of coaching and volunteering in the Maumelle community and later driving the school bus for field trips for the Maumelle Charter School until his final retirement. Burch was extremely proud of the Maumelle Senior Wellness Center that he initiated as mayor. He and Jackie enjoyed volunteering there and throughout Maumelle as the Maumelle community was very dear to both of them. Burch always had a passion for helping people and he never met a stranger. During his lifetime, Burch received many honors and held several memberships. In 1972, Burch was honored to receive the Outstanding Young Men of America award. He was a member of The Presidents Club and "M" Club at the University of Memphis. Burch served on the Board of Directors of the Petroleum Equipment Institute, Equipment Tool Institute and was President of the Automotive Lift Institute. He also served on the American Cancer Society, American Heart Association and United Fund. Burch served on the Board of Directors of Maumelle Chamber of Commerce and received the Boss of the Year award from the National Jaycees.

A Loving Family

Burch loved his family and made it an annual ritual to call each family member on their birthday and sing happy birthday. Burch will be sadly missed by his loving family, his son Cliff Johnson and wife Julie of Fishers, Indiana, his daughter Kem Ray and her husband Allan Miller of Maumelle, Arkansas, his five beloved grandsons, Dylan Ray, Tanner Ray, Logan Ray, Luke Johnson, and Brantley Johnson. Burch was preceded in death by his loving wife of 65 years, Jeanne "Jackie" Johnson who passed away on June 2, 2021, his parents, his brother H.T., sisters Virginia and Linda Ruth.

Memorial

The Memorial Service will be Friday, November 11, 2022, at 2pm. Memphis Memory Gardens in Memphis, Tennessee will be Burch and Jackie's final resting place.

Visitation

Visitation with the family will be Thursday, November 10, 2022, from 5-7pm and Friday, November 11, 2022, from 1-2pm at Roller Chenal Funeral Home in Little Rock, Arkansas.

Welcome to Madison's first indoor play café!

As moms, we know we are always looking for ways to entertain our children. Children need to be constantly stimulated to keep up with their rapidly developing brains and bodies. Our indoor play cafe offers a unique environment where small children can play freely in an age appropriate facility. While all children are welcome, our playroom is most suitable for ages 0-6. Parents can supervise their children while knowing that they are in a safe space created for their size and ability. We have an area dedicated for infants, where they can work on their fine and gross motor skills, without the risk of being engaged in rough play by older kids.

We also have a full café offering specialty coffees, smoothies, sandwiches and snacks. Our café offers dine in and carryout for all customers. Playroom seating is reserved for adults accompanying a child in the playroom, where they can recharge while watching their children play and socialize from the perfect vantage point.

We all need a break, stop in and have some fun! Open Monday-Saturday 10am-5pm!

Let us host your little one's birthday party! Pick their favorite from a variety of themes and we will set up a picture perfect area for a memorable celebration!

Guess What Is Coming To A Bank Near You?

Layin' it on the line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

What appears foreign will become commonplace, and you might as well prepare for it. Cryptocurrencies and decentralized finance are all the rage right now, and you've probably heard of things like Bitcoin or Ethereum. However, the real story lies in the mechanism that drives these new technologies and forever changes the digital landscape. This is where blockchain enters the picture, the novel technology that enables things like cryptocurrency to exist in the way they do.

What is a blockchain, and what is with all the hype?

Blockchain is a digital database used to catalog all kinds of information (e.g., money, goods, properties, and services). The power behind these databases lies in their ability to create blocks of data which are then chained together with timestamps attached for easier tracking purposes. This makes an unbreakable audit trail documenting every action taken on the platform - from transfer payments between users to how many calories were burned during your morning run! Digital databases are powered by a computer network that is either part of a centralized or decentralized network.

Bitcoin, for example, uses blockchain to record peer-to-peer transactions through a distributed database. This distributed database exists between the computers of all users of the cryptocurrency. The idea is that having the database distributed amongst all the users allows for greater transparency and enhanced security. It enables users to access, audit, trace, and verify digital assets without working through an intermediary. By cutting down on intermediaries, blockchain cryptocurrencies put the power to control data back into consumers' hands.

Why are cryptocurrencies more secure?

The adage "don't put all of your eggs in one basket" sums it up. Like banks and universities, many institutions with valuable and personal consumer information operate using a central database. This information is stored within a centralized computer network housed in one location. All that data is controlled by one entity and is more vulnerable to hacks because it would require only a single point of failure to gain access. For a potential attacker to compromise a distributed database like Bitcoin, they would have to gain control of at least 50% of the computers within that network. Even then, the other 50% can fact-check and sniff out discrepancies, making it very unlikely that a hack would ever occur.

Why is this important when it comes to managing digital assets?

- No third-party involvement
- Transactions of authenticated digital assets made via blockchain are typically available in 10 minutes, versus a traditional bank transaction that may take 24 hours or more to complete, not including weekends and holidays
- Blockchain technology guarantees the data's integrity through cryptography and a distributed database.

Why is this important to us now? This is the evolution of our data future, and the future of all banks is being reshaped by new technology. Protecting and maintaining control of data is more critical now than ever. In the past few years, major companies like Facebook, LinkedIn, and Morgan Stanley have been impacted by massive data breaches affecting millions of users. Blockchain technology is making waves in the digital world by providing much-needed security measures and by giving them the power to control data back to consumers.

Digital? Yes, your bank is now 100% digital; it is now our future. Be informed.

TODAY IN HISTORY

TODAY'S HIGHLIGHT IN HISTORY:

On Nov. 12, 1927, Josef Stalin became the undisputed ruler of the Soviet Union as Leon Trotsky was expelled from the Communist Party.

ON THIS DATE:

In 1920, baseball got its first "czar" as Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis was elected commissioner of the American and National Leagues.

In 1936, the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge opened as President Franklin D. Roosevelt pressed a telegraph key in Washington, D.C., giving the green light to traffic.

In 1942, the World War II naval Battle of Guadalcanal began. (The Allies ended up winning a major victory over Japanese forces.)

In 1948, former Japanese premier Hideki Tojo and several other World War II Japanese leaders were sentenced to death by a war crimes tribunal.

In 1970, the Bhola cyclone struck East Pakistan; it's believed that as many as a half million people were killed.

In 1975, Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas retired because of failing health, ending a record 36-year term.

In 1982, Yuri V. Andropov was elected to succeed the late Leonid I. Brezhnev as general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party's Central Committee.

In 1996, a Saudi Boeing 747 jetliner collided shortly after takeoff from New Delhi, India, with a Kazak Ilyushin (il-YOO'-shin)-76 cargo plane, killing 349 people.

In 2001, American Airlines Flight 587, an Airbus A300 headed to the Dominican Republic, crashed after takeoff from New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport, killing all 260 people on board and five people on the ground.

In 2009, Army psychiatrist Maj. Nidal Malik Hasan was charged with 13 counts of premeditated murder in the Fort Hood, Texas, shooting rampage. (Hasan was later convicted and sentenced to death; no execution date has been set.)

In 2019, Venice saw its worst flooding in more than 50 years, with the water reaching 6.14 feet above average sea level; damage was estimated in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

In 2020, the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency, a broad coalition of top government and industry officials, rejected President Donald Trump's claims of election fraud, saying that the election was "the most secure in American history" and that there was "no evidence that any voting system deleted or lost votes, changed votes or was in any way compromised."

Ten years ago: The United States was re-elected to another three-year term on the U.N. Human Rights Council in the only contested election for the organization's top human rights body.

Five years ago: President Donald Trump said he believed U.S. intelligence agencies, which concluded that Russia meddled in the 2016 U.S. presidential election, but that he also believed that Russia's Vladimir Putin felt that Russia did not interfere. Trump exchanged taunts with North Korea's leader, tweeting, "Why would Kim Jong-un insult me by calling me 'old,' when I would NEVER call him 'short and fat?'"

One year ago: Steve Bannon, a longtime ally to former President Donald Trump, was indicted on two counts of criminal contempt of Congress after he defied a subpoena from the House committee investigating the insurrection at the U.S. Capitol. (Bannon would be convicted and sentenced to four months in prison.) The government directed nursing homes to open their doors wide to visitors, easing many remaining pandemic restrictions while urging residents, families and facility staff to keep their guard up against coronavirus outbreaks. A judge in Los Angeles ended the conservatorship that had controlled the life and money of pop star Britney Spears for nearly 14 years.

Today's Birthdays: Singer Brian Hyland is 79. Actor-playwright Wallace Shawn is 79. Rock musician Booker T. Jones (Booker T. & the MGs) is 78. Sportscaster Al Michaels is 78. Singer-songwriter Neil Young is 77. Rock musician Donald "Buck Dharma" Roeser (Blue Oyster Cult) is 75. Sen. Jack Reed, D-R.I., is 73. Country/gospel singer Barbara Fairchild is 72. TODAY IN HISTORY

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 14, 1970, a chartered Southern Airways DC-9 crashed while trying to land in West Virginia, killing all 75 people on board, including the Marshall University football team and its coaching staff.

On this date:

In 1851, Herman Melville's novel "Moby-Dick; Or, The Whale" was published in the United States, almost a month after being released in Britain.

In 1910, Eugene B. Ely became the first aviator to take off from a ship as his Curtiss pusher rolled off a sloping platform on the deck of the scout cruiser USS Birmingham off Hampton Roads, Virginia.

In 1915, African-American educator Booker T. Washington, 59, died in Tuskegee, Alabama.

In 1940, during World War II, German planes destroyed most of the English town of Coventry.

In 1965, the U.S. Army's first major military operation of the Vietnam War began with the start of the five-day Battle of la Drang. (The fighting between American troops and North Vietnamese forces ended on Nov. 18 with both sides claiming victory.)

In 1969, Apollo 12 blasted off for the moon.

In 1972, the Dow Jones Industrial Average closed above the 1,000 level for the first time, ending the day at 1,003.16.

In 1973, Britain's Princess Anne married Captain Mark Phillips in Westminster Abbey. (They divorced in 1992, and Anne remarried.)

In 1996, singer Michael Jackson married his plastic surgeon's nurse, Debbie Rowe, in a ceremony in Sydney, Australia. (Rowe filed for divorce in 1999.)

In 2013, former Boston crime boss James "Whitey" Bulger was led off to prison to begin serving a life sentence at 84 for his murderous reign in the 1970s and '80s. (Bulger was killed Oct. 30, 2018, hours after arriving at a federal prison in West Virginia.)

In 2020, Donald Trump supporters unwilling to accept Democrat Joe Biden's election victory gathered in cities across the country including Washington, D.C., where thousands rallied; after night fell in the nation's capital, demonstrators favoring Trump clashed in the streets with counterprotesters, resulting in injuries to demonstrators and police officers and charges against nearly two dozen people.

Ten years ago: President Barack Obama, in his first news conference since winning a second term, challenged congressional Republicans to let taxes rise on the wealthiest Americans, saying that would ease the threat of another recession as the nation faced a "fiscal cliff." Israel said it had killed the leader of Hamas' military wing in a wave of airstrikes launched in response to days of rocket fire out of Hamas-ruled Gaza. Baseball's Cy Young Awards went to Tampa Bay's David Price in the American League and R.A. Dickey of the New York Mets in the National League.

Five years ago: Three UCLA basketball players who'd been detained in China on suspicion of shoplifting returned home; they were then indefinitely suspended from the team. Papa John's Pizza apologized for comments made by CEO John Schnatter (SHNAH'-tur), who had blamed sluggish pizza sales on NFL players kneeling during the national anthem. House Speaker Paul Ryan said the House would require anti-harassment and anti-discrimination training for all members and their staffs; the announcement came hours after two female lawmakers spoke about sexual misconduct involving sitting members of Congress.

One year ago: A 9-year-old Dallas boy became the youngest person to die from injuries sustained during a crowd surge at the Astroworld music festival in Houston nine days earlier; a family attorney said Ezra Blount died at a Houston hospital, where he'd been placed in a medically induced coma after he suffered serious injuries in the crush of fans during a performance by rapper Travis Scott. (The crowd surge left 10 people dead.) Libya's election agency said Seif al-Islam, the son and one-time heir apparent of late Libyan dictator Moammar Gadhafi, had announced his candidacy for the country's December presidential election.

Today's Birthdays: Actor Kathleen Hughes is 94. Former NASA astronaut Fred Haise is 89. Composer Wendy Carlos is 83. Britain's King Charles III is 74. Rock singer-musician James Young (Styx) is 73. Singer Stephen Bishop is 71. Blues musician Anson Funderburgh is 68. Pianist Yanni is 68. Former U.S. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice is 68. Former presidential adviser Valerie Jarrett is 66. Actor Laura San Giacomo (JEE'-ah-koh-moh) is 61. Actor D.B. Sweeney is 61. Rapper Reverend Run (Run-DMC) is 58. Actor Patrick Warburton is 58.

The decision to move toward dissolving the board began in part because the state took over negotiation of all cable franchise agreements so there is no longer a requirement to have the board. Jefferson county, the town of Hanover and the city of Madison have taken over or will take over recording their own meetings.

The city has been video streaming its meetings for about 20 months. The town of Hanover has owned its own equipment since last year, and Hanover town council member and CAB board member Debbie Kroger said the town has hired a person to oversee recording meetings. She said set up for that will begin next week so Tuesday's Hanover Town Council won't be recorded, but the system should be ready by the first meeting in December.

The county's plan for recording meetings isn't officially known but the ordinance terminating the CAB also provides for a camera and tripod to go to the county.

CAB president Lori Hedges said she will discuss with the Commissioners what they want to do with the Jefferson County Community Television Facebook page and YouTube channel, and she will continue to post meeting notices and events until that is determined.

The only entity left in the equation is Southwestern School Board, which has relied on CAB to record its meetings. Recordings of Madison School Board meetings are already handled by Madison Consolidated Schools. Kroger said the town is willing to work with Southwestern to assist with getting the meetings recorded, and will be reaching out to school officials.

Hedges asked for board permission to transfer "What's Happening in Jefferson County" under her own copyright so that she can continue to make county event and festival videos under that banner. She said the title was created under the Jefferson County Community Television copyright but wanted that transferred to her Molly Paws Productions.

Board member Stephanie Hellmann made a motion for Hedges to "do whatever you please with that, and have a good time, and God bless you" and the board unanimously approved. Kroger said the CAB has approximately $11,000 in funds remaining with the $10,000 contribution that the county made in the last few months being returned to the county. The remainder of the funds will be split between the town of Hanover and the city of Madison, along with proceeds from surplus equipment that will be sold at auction.

Video archives will be returned to the entity for which they pertain — the county, Madison and Hanover. However, board member Jim Bartlett, who also serves on Madison city council, said he would like the archives to go towards public use either through the Jefferson County Library or the Jefferson County Historical Society. "If they're interested in archiving them so they are available to the public then that's the best answer," he said.

With Thursday being the CAB's final meeting, Hedges said she "really had been hopeful we could make something out of this, and do something with this" but it has been challenging to accomplish. "I really think we did the best that we could. I really appreciate the camera operators that I worked with."

VETS

Wallace noted his appreciation for all that veterans have done. "It's so powerful what they've given so we can live free."

Commissioner Bobby Little, a veteran of the US Army, read an essay written by Valerie Stickles when she was an eighth grader in 2006 at Captain Nathan Hale Middle School in Coventry, Connecticut, that finished by saying, "A veteran risks everything and also pays that fee. A veteran goes against all odds to protect you and me. Veterans are so special to our great country. Veterans are our idol. That's what a veteran means to me."

State Rep. Randy Frye, chairman of the Veterans Affairs Committee in the Indiana House of Representatives, said in a larger sense "every day is Veterans Day because it is the veterans that gave us the freedom to be here any day, and we owe them a great deal of gratitude from that."

There were several other activities on Friday including a Veterans Day program in the morning at Madison Consolidated High School and Southwestern Elementary School. On Friday evening there was a dedication of the Jefferson County Veterans Tree at the Hanover Community Park.

community with over 400 employees who are responsible for the education of our children. When evaluating our budget, we had additional funding available through cash reserves, increased state funding and private donations that allowed us to raise our overall compensation rate to retain our current employees and attract talent to our district. We want our employees to be well compensated and understand that we value them."

As part of the collective bargaining agreement with teachers, all returning teachers will receive a $5,000 annual pay increase while all new hires employed prior to ratification of the contract will have their annual salary readjusted upward by $5,000, along with contributions to the teacher 403b plan, and other benefits.

Brown said all administrators will also receive the $5,000 annual increase but newly hired administrators are not eligible. Additionally, all MCS positions will now have a starting wage of at least $15 per hour and offer additional compensation for years of experience, advanced or specialized degrees, and certifications or prior experience. Some employees will see up to 50% increase in their current pay.

"For some of them, it will be life-changing, so thank you to this board for being committed to making that happen for them," Brown said in her comments at the end of school board meeting.

Brown said the private donation is one that is given annually to the school corporation and is being used in combination with cash reserves and additional funding. "This is an annual donation and will be available for many years."

Board member Jay Roney praised Brown for her leadership in negotiations with teachers. "I talked to some of the teachers that were on the bargaining … and they said how great you were to work with" and noted Brown had accomplished "what your predecessor never did prior to now."

Roney also said the pay raises achieved one of his goals for running for and serving on school board.

"When ... people would always ask me why I wanted to run for school board one of the first things I would always say is that I thought our teachers weren't valued enough or paid enough, so that was something I really wanted to work on," Roney said, adding that "without the teachers, the bus drivers, the cafeteria staff, everybody, our students would not have the opportunities that they do and I always wanted to give our teachers the resources to do that. I'm just really proud that we could be on this board with four other people, and that we were able to get it done because in the past, we didn't always get what we wanted just because we were always told certain things."

Board member Jodi Yancey said she appreciated the staff "looking at hiring scales, looking at the budget and having all the information for us so we knew what we were going to be comfortable to do because we want to be able to compensate our employees with everything that we can and still stay financially secure, and still be able to do the upkeep, and all the necessary things to keep the doors open."

Tim Whitaker, president of the Madison Teacher Association, thanked the board and Brown "for the commitment they have made through these contracts." He said that with the "dollar figure that went to our base salaries, also the other things that were agreed to in this contract," along with the pay increases to all other staff that it will make the job easier for the teachers because the school corporation is going to be able to hire all the other employees that are "also part of the education process."

Whitaker noted they all work side-by-side ad the non-certified employees "feed us, they take care of the kids, they clean up after us" and do so much more. "Hopefully this is the foundation that we can continue to provide that kind of commitment from board to our employees."

and law enforcement officers were then dispatched to the river as part of the rescue/recovery effort. Assistance also was requested and received from a nearby US Coast Guard vessel which launched a boat and crew that was able to successfully retrieve Clark from the river and return him to the shoreline.

Witnesses said Clark was partially clothed when returned to the Madison boat ramp where an ambulance was awaiting. He was taken into custody by MPD and transported to the hospital emergency room where he was evaluated, discharged and transported to the Jefferson County Jail.

While being transporting to the jail, Clark allegedly became combative and attempted to escape. Additional officers responded and assisted in completing the transport.

Clark was charged with Resisting Law Enforcement and Escape, both Level 6 felonies; and arrested on the outstanding warrant for Operating a Vehicle While Intoxicated, also a Level 6 felony, out of Jefferson County, Indiana.

MPD Officers Chad Wehner and Cameron Blankenship assisted Lane with the investigation. Officers from the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office, Department of Natural Resources and local fire companies also responded to the call.

BOYS SOCCER PLAYER OF THE YEAR

Todd was heart of Switzerland's record season

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

As Switzerland County's 2022 boys soccer season progressed and the wins kept coming, the team grew more and more confident. First there was the undefeated Ohio River Valley Conference title, then an undefeated regular season capped off by a first sectional championship in program history.

At the heart of all that success was a skilled sophomore who was equally adept at setting up teammates as he was scoring goals himself. By the time the Pacers' magical season finally came to an end, everybody in the state knew about Cooper Todd.

"I think I expected (this kind of season) for myself," Todd said. "My teammates expected it from me and I didn't know exactly how well I would do, but I think I expected to do well."

Todd is the 2022 Madison Courier Boys Soccer Player of the Year not just for his statistics, which were gaudy, but because of his versatile play. There was arguably no player in the area who was as equally comfortable running the offense as he was operating within it.

"I think that the strongest aspect of his game is his soccer IQ. His soccer IQ is very, very high. He understands his role and his position," said Switzerland County coach David Todd, who is also Cooper's father. "Next year he may be in a completely different position. And he will have to adjust to that position. But when teams focus on him, he's able to find the open player and we're able to drop him back into midfield and get some other people open."

Todd grew up in a basketball family. David Todd is the former boys basketball coach at Switzerland County. Cooper's older sister, Brooke, is a former standout player at Switzerland and Courier Girls Basketball Player of the Year as a senior, and is now the head girls basketball coach at the school.

But Cooper was drawn to soccer at a young age and, while he also plays basketball, there is no question which sport would be his focus.

"He's had a ball with him since he was born," David Todd said with a smile. "His brother and sister both made that happen and they were just very competitive with him from the day he was born.

"And just something about him has always been pretty exciting."

Nina Campbell

Switzerland County sophomore Cooper Todd has been selected as the 2022 Madison Courier Boys Soccer Player of the Year.

Cooper Todd broke onto the scene last year when, as a freshman, he led the Pacers to their best season in school history, scoring 14 goals with five assists as Switzerland won a then-school record 11 matches.

But that was nothing compared to this year. With Todd leading the way, the Pacers started winning and didn't stop, eventually ripping off 19-straight victories before suffering a disappointing 3-1 loss to Christian Academy of Indiana in the regional.

"We knew we could be good, but we didn't really know how good we can be. And then I think once we got probably about four or five games, we realized we have a chance to win every game," Cooper Todd said. "And then the farther we went, it was just like, we didn't really know if (an undefeated season) was gonna happen. It was just like it was meant to be."

At the heart of that success was Todd, whose 34 goals not only led the Courierarea by 12 over the next closest rival, but tied Cooper for eighth most in the state of Indiana. He also had 14 assists — second-most in the area — and his 82 total points were 10th-best in the state.

Todd's stats were even more impressive considering that he played on a team dominated by upperclassmen. Seniors like Levi Curlin, who had 15 goals and 20 assists for 10th most in the state, were more than happy to let the sophomore score goals.

"I think what our team has really built around is the fact that they only care about one thing and it's winning and it's doing their job. Cooper's job is he's our striker and it's the striker's job to put the ball on the back of the net," David Todd said. "The key to that whole thing was Levi Curlin, who is just the ultimate leader of this team. It's not that he deferred to Cooper. He recognized that his skill set was to play in the midfield and to win balls. If Levi doesn't buy into that, it's a whole different scenario and so I think, without Levi Curlin, you're not talking to Cooper out here right now."

While the season ended long before the Pacers were ready — David Todd believes the Pacers had state championship ability — everybody associated with the team was happy with the progress shown in 2022, including Cooper.

"We talked about all year that we just wanted to go out and just have fun, "Cooper Todd said. "When you just have fun, you're not worried about trying to just do whatever you need to do and it's a lot easier to play well. And that's what we did."

Although basketball practice is now underway, Cooper is already looking ahead to the next soccer season. He hopes to play soccer in college and knows what he has to do in order to be successful.

"Just keep working hard in every aspect," Todd said. "I need to work on my left foot a lot. I have some teammates leaving but I know a lot of other guys are going to step up and help as a team. So maybe we can look for a regional in the next couple of years."

Hanover routs Spalding to open season

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Thirteen different players scored and Hanover led from start in a 73-42 rout over over Spalding in the Panthers' men's basketball season opener Wednesday in Louisville.

Ty Houston led the barrage, scoring 17 points on 7-of-12 shooting and adding five rebounds for Hanover. As a team, the Panthers shot only 40% (27-for-68) from the floor, but what they lacked in efficiency, they more than made up for in volume.

Max Greenamoyer scored 16 points and pulled down seven rebounds for Hanover while Jack Wininger had eight points and seven rebounds. Former Madison Cub Luke Miller, now a sophomore at Hanover, scored six points and had two rebounds in 15 minutes of action.

A total of 17 players saw action in the game for Hanover.

Andre Crawford had 16 points to lead Spalding.

Hanover returns to action on Tuesday when it hosts Wabash at Collier Arena.

The Panthers picked up a road win over Wabash last season in a year in which the Little Giants reached the NCAA Division III Final Four.

Mixon's big day energizes Bengals

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Joe Mixon said he was out to show everyone he was "still that dude."

In making that point, the sixth-year running back might have revived the Cincinnati Bengals' season — as well as own.

He certainly revived their confidence.

Mixon's frustrating lack of production through eight games had reduced his role in the Bengals' offensive plans, with inconsistent line play taking part of that blame. Fans on social media wondered if his best years were behind him.

After rushing for more than 1,200 yards in the run-up to the Super Bowl last year, Mixon was averaging 3.4 yards per carry this seaosn, had only three plays of more than 15 yards and scored just three touchdowns.

Then last week against the Carolina Panthers, Mixon went "crazy," as teammate Tyler Boyd said, biting off chunks of yards and scoring touchdowns early as the Bengals raced to a 35-0 halftime lead. Mixon averaged 7 yards per carry in rushing for 153 with four touchdowns. He added another 58 receiving yards and a TD catch.

"I knew at some point the dam would break," Mixon said. "I tried to come out here and prove to myself that I'm still that dude."

His four rushing TDs were the most by an NFL player in a single game this season and his five total TDs were a Bengals single-game franchise record. The performance earned him AFC offensive player of the week honors.

"The best I've ever seen — that was it, right there," Boyd said. "But I expect that out of Joe. I know he always has those games each year where he goes crazy, but this is the craziest one yet that I've seen."

The 26-year-old Mixon delivered it at a critical time for the Bengals. Playing without injured star receiver Ja'Marr Chase, Cincinnati was embarrassed the previous Monday night at Cleveland 32-13 and slipped to 4-4, with the Carolina game standing between it and a much-needed week off.

Mixon's performance and the 42-21 rout was a monumental shot for the Bengals' morale. Their 5-4 record is identical to last year's at the nine-game mark. But they were 0-3 against AFC North foes in the first half and open the second half at Pittsburgh (2-6) on Nov. 20. Cincinnati will be trying to avenge a 23-20 overtime loss to the Steelers in Week 1.

"It's different when Joe Burrow is having a day like that, but when Mixon is running the ball, it kind of creates the dominance of our team on all three phases," said safety Jessie Bates III, who had one of Cincinnati's two interceptions of Carolina's P.J. Walker. "Joe (Mixon) was definitely running with a different type of pop. Like I said, it got going, not

Saturday back to work with Colts

INDIANAPOLIS — When Colts owner Jim Irsay first contacted Jeff Saturday, he wanted answers about Indy's struggling offensive line.

Last weekend's late-night callback came with an offer Saturday couldn't refuse.

Less than 12 hours later, Irsay met with general manager Chris Ballard and the two then told coach Frank Reich he had been fired after 4 ½ seasons.

Reich's replacement is a gritty, energetic two-time All-Pro center with no coaching experience above the prep level and willing to do

Purdue visits No. 21 Illinois in key Big Ten West game

BY GAVIN GOOD
ASSOCIATED PRESS

About 11 months after transferring from Syracuse, quarterback Tommy DeVito has helped to revitalize a long-struggling Illinois offense and lift the team into the Big Ten West lead with three games remaining.

DeVito and the No. 21 Illini (7-2, 4-2 Big Ten) have an opportunity to become the first team in program history to make an appearance in the Big Ten championship game in Indianapolis next month. To do so, they'll almost certainly have to get past a dangerous, if streaky, Purdue (5-4, 3-3) team on Saturday.

Costly turnovers and empty red-zone trips cost the Illini in their 23-15 loss to Michigan State at home last week. DeVito said there's "definitely a sense of urgency" among his teammates ahead of Purdue.

The Boilermakers would love nothing more than to be the source of more Illini nightmares — especially since a win in Champaign would put them back in control of their ability to win the Big Ten West.

Purdue hosts lowly Northwestern next week before a rivalry matchup at struggling Indiana, while Illinois will travel to No. 3 Michigan before closing out against Northwestern in Evanston on Nov. 26.

Losses at Wisconsin and to Iowa in back-to-back weeks have put the Boilermakers in a position where they must win to keep their division title hopes within reach. If Illinois wins Saturday, it would clinch the division with a win over either Michigan or Northwestern; Illinois already holds tiebreakers over Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota. Saturday's stakes could hardly get higher for either program.

STARK CONTRAST

Purdue coach Jeff Brohm and Illinois coach Bret Bielema have taken distinct approaches in turning longtime Big Ten afterthoughts into West Division contenders.

Brohm's pass-heavy scheme found a strong fit in quarterback Aidan O'Connell, a former walk-on who now ranks first all-time at Purdue in career completion percentage (67%), second in career 400-yard passing games (five), sixth in career passing yards (8,167) and sixth in career completions (735).

Bielema has built on strengths that were already in place when he took over of last year. Chase Brown leads the nation with 1,344 rushing yards and a mix of vets and junior college additions are both paving the way for the run and ensuring DeVito has time to pick his targets.

"(Illinois) has beaten the last two teams that beat us, both Iowa and Wisconsin," Brohm said. "Defense is aggressive, they've been ranked number one in the country. Done a great job offensively, really good running back. Quarterback's come in and done a good job. To go to their place is always going to be difficult, so we got our hands full."

LEVEL UP

New faces have helped each side find more balance this year than in previous iterations.

DeVito's arrival turned Illinois into a multidimensional offense, capable of threatening teams through the air. His 71.8% completion percentage only trails Oregon's Bo Nix (73.3%).

Opponents find themselves forced between locking in on Brown or daring DeVito to carve them up. Isaiah Williams and Pat Bryant have emerged as capable receivers.

Deen called Brown a "physical guy, super slippery," who reminds him of his own teammate in running back Devin Mockobee.

The redshirt-freshman has been a revelation for the Boilermakers offense, which was already productive via quarterback-receiver duo Aidan O'Connell and Charlie Jones.

COLLISION COURSE

Ranking sixth nationally in reception yards (944) and nine touchdown catches, Jones looks likely to find himself in an all-day duel with lockdown cornerback Devon Witherspoon.

Illinois ranks first in passing defense (152.6 yards allowed per game) and scoring defense, allowing just 10.44 points per game.

But Michigan State's talented receivers made just enough plays last week and the Illinois offense converted on just one of six fourth-down attempts.

Witherspoon is determined to help his unit bounce back in a big way this week.

"We're physical, we like to get after people and impose our will," Witherspoon said. "That's what we're going to do."

whatever he can to turn around the Colts season.

"When he said, 'Hey, can you help me?' Absolutely I'll help," Saturday recounted before his first practice as Indy's interim coach. "If somebody called and said this is an opportunity to say, for the people in this room and in this building, would you do it?' Absolutely I'm going to do it."

Saturday's most immediate challenge now is getting the Colts ready for Sunday's game at Las Vegas and he's working overtime to prepare for his NFL coaching debut.

Since Monday's announcement, Saturday has scrambled from one meeting to the next, made some key decisions and met with players.

The first priority, though, is helping the locker room plow through the turbulence all these midseason moves have created.

Perhaps nobody felt it more than Sam Ehlinger, who replaced Matt Ryan as starting quarterback two weeks ago.

Since then, Ehlinger has seen his offensive coordinator fired, his head coach fired, a friend traded and his assistant position coach, Parks Frazier, promoted to play-caller.

Why Frazier?

"I made the decision based on where the coaches were and trying to move as few pieces and parts as I could," Saturday said. "With Parks being the floater, he's been here the longest. I think he's been here since 2018. He knows the offense extremely well."

The chaos and confusion of recent weeks would be enough to keep anyone's head spinning, much less a second-year player such as Ehlinger who is scheduled to make his third career start this weekend. Saturday has already clarified one thing — Ehlinger will continue to start.

None of it has been easy.

"Nobody has been expecting anything that has happened," Ehlinger said. "I didn't know who was going to be the head coach. I was working out, I heard and I was fired up because it's a great opportunity to move forward and get behind Jeff and finish the season strong."

One thing that did help Wednesday was getting back on the practice field.

But the hard part will be finding solutions.

Saturday inherits a team that has lost three straight. The offense averages a league-low 14.7 points, has allowed a league-high 35 sacks and is tied for the league lead in giveaways (17).

Indy (3-5-1) has failed to score a touchdown in three games this season and, at times, has performed embarrassingly poorly.

That's why Irsay initially contacted Saturday — to find out why he thought the NFL's highest-paid offensive line gave up so many sacks last weekend. Saturday told reporters he couldn't answer because he was watching other telecasts to get ready for his job at ESPN.

He also insisted he did not speak with Irsay about the job a week earlier when he attended the induction of friend and former teammate Tarik Glenn into Indy's Ring of Honor.

Turns out, Irsay could have simply consulted three-time All-Pro left guard Quenton Nelson.

"Love him as a coach and person and appreciate everything he's done for the Colts and my success. A lot of that is because of him," Nelson said, referring to Reich. "I feel like there's times this season I let down Coach Frank and contributed to his firing."

While some outsiders question Irsay's decision to change coaches with eight games left and Indy still in the playoff hunt, others suggest the move means Indy will "tank" for a franchise quarterback in April's draft, players offered support for their new coach.

Irsay's move also has been criticized as a way to skirt the Rooney Rule, which is designed to help minority coaching candidates be included in the interview process.

Irsay has hired two black head coaches, Tony Dungy and Jim Caldwell, and had a black coordinator in Marcus Brady until he was fired and has promised to comply with the Rooney Rule.

just through the offense, but through our defense and special teams, as well."

That also peeled some of the pressure off Burrow, who passed for 206 yards and the TD to Mixon.

"If we run the ball like we did, it's tough to stop us," Burrow said. "We're getting healthy again; we'll get some key guys back after the bye and continue to get guys back after that. That's going to be big for us, to get everyone healthy and ready to go."

If Cincinnati can continue to get Mixon loose, defenses will have to adjust, which should give Burrow some more room to find his receivers.

"The way that we were balanced, I feel like it's going to pay huge dividends down the road because we ran the ball effectively, and also we threw the ball," Mixon said. "When Chase comes back ... we start opening the offense even more, because the run game is going, and the pass is on.

"I feel like it's only going to get crazier."

Sister-in-law is a persistent mis-namer

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: I'm a 55-year-old man.

I legally changed my (first) name when I was 25 years old, mainly because I was the fourth "John" in my family, with many of us sharing the same name.

I have used this name personally and professionally for over 30 years.

Everyone in my life calls me by my chosen name — except my sister-in-law, "Wendy."

My younger brother and sister-in-law recently welcomed the first grandchildren into the clan.

I was upset that Wendy objected when I referred to myself as "Uncle Chosen Name."

She quickly corrected me, using my birth name, which I do not use in any capacity.

Her own children call me by my chosen name, so there is no way this child will grow up using my birth name.

Wendy also creates awkward moments when she introduces me to her friends and says to me as an aside, "I explained about your name." What?

Why is she explaining ANYTHING for me? They don't need to have my name explained, especially in a way that makes me look like a gadfly with a personality disorder.

I have no other problem with Wendy, and have always considered her family.

How do I get her to understand that my name isn't her choice and that her actions are extremely insulting and demeaning?

— Call me Ishmael

Dear Ishmael: You don't seem to have ever responded to "Wendy" directly when she refuses to use your legal name of three decades.

Wendy is a very long-time family member. Your big sister, in a way. So, use your words!

Rehearse in advance, if that works for you. Try a version of: "Wendy, I don't get it. What is it with you and my name? I really need you to understand that this is my legal name. Everyone in the world uses it, except for you. And I guess you can call me anything you want, but I'm only going to answer to my name."

Family reunification comes with distance and downside

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: I am 65 years old. Three years ago, I was fortunate to locate my birth family through a DNA search.

To my surprise, my birth mother was still alive and in good health. When we first spoke, she said, "I've been waiting for this call for 60 years."

They live about 1,200 miles away, and I made a visit shortly after we first connected.

It was a mostly positive experience, and I am especially fond of my brother and his wife.

We continue to talk by phone, but when I speak with any of these family members, they always pressure me to make a return visit.

When I talk to my mother, she makes remarks like, "I thought you forgot about me," or, "Why haven't I heard from you?"

She never asks anything about my life growing up or about my (wonderful) parents, who have both passed away.

I want to see these family members, but for my own emotional sanity I want only a brief visit.

When I arranged a hotel room for my first visit, my mother nearly flipped out and I had to cancel the room and agree to stay at her house.

If I go back, I need to stay at a hotel, for my own health.

How can I frame a brief visit without seeming cold or as if I don't want to be with her/them?

— A

Dear A: You have undertaken a momentous and laudable effort to find and visit your birth family. Unfortunately, you are allowing your mother to emotionally manipulate you.

If you plan another visit, say, "I'm booking a room at a nearby hotel." If your mother protests, stay very quiet and let her run out of steam. Just. Wait.

Then you say, "OK, well I'll call when I get in. It will be nice to visit again."

If you seem cold — so be it. Your mother has not really gotten to know you — she has only insisted that you know her.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Put every ounce of extra energy to good use. Clean out something or tackle a special project with enthusiasm. Get help by working side by side with other people, and the time spent can also serve as a fun social event.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You may have an urge to splurge. Money won't burn a hole in your pocket if you put it safely away in your bank account. Better for you and a loved one to spend time together enjoying a sport or other activity.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Close your eyes and enjoy some waking dreams. Visualize desirable outcomes and achievements and let your subconscious get on board in creating the future. Imagine your inner feelings when you accomplish your objectives.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Be persistent in the pursuit of your dreams. And, if you use your imagination, you can enjoy a great deal of fun and entertainment on the way. Share your bounty of interesting ideas with your partner or loved ones.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Strong boundaries give you the choice whether to let your surroundings affect you or not. If you don't resonate, walk away or change them for the better. A loved one might be engrossed in practical matters or group gatherings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Don't underestimate the intelligence of someone who prefers peace and quiet. That person could be intuitive and help you make wise choices. A little bird may whisper some valuable information in your ear.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — The course of true love might not run smoothly if finances or business plans become the topic of discussion. You may prefer to have someone by your side who is only interested in pleasing and amusing you tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Your water sign tends to seek its own level. It is helpful to spend time with sensitive people who share your ideals. Focus on enjoying creative projects with a harmonious and energetic companion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Spend time working at home on something that will give you lasting pleasure. The confines of your home and family nest could be your comfort zone. Achieve an understanding with an adversary.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Keep confidential information you've been entrusted with to yourself. You can support lasting friendships when you are sympathetic to someone's issues. Remain confident that things will work out well in the end.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Everything can operate more efficiently when you de-clutter. Organize your desk, clean out the car, or straighten up your kitchen pantry. When your possessions are neat and arranged logically your mind can reflect this.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Find time to be kind and thoughtful, even if some family tensions are disturbing your tranquility. Your best efforts to be sympathetic might still be misunderstood or unappreciated. Inspiring information can lift your spirits.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Ease someone's doubts by actually taking reassuring actions rather than just saying the words. Be conscientious about handling financial responsibilities while you have the means. Avoid adding extra debts now.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — As the quote says, Whether you believe you can, or believe you can't, you'll be right. You may believe you are faced with insurmountable obstacles, but these can be conquered. Wait until late in the week to make your move.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Honor the boundaries of others while you maintain your own. Be mindful and don't take things personally. You will be more satisfied with the outcome if you keep your temper in hand and act with propriety.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Avoid impulsive credit card purchases that could add up and cause a problem when the bills come due. Someone close might be passionate about achieving material ambitions, but you can go further by exercising caution.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — To navigate your way past problems, trim your sails to take advantage of favorable winds. Friends and family may distract you, but you can find a way to maintain momentum. Avoid agreeing to new contractual obligations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Stay on your toes but be very kind. During a heated debate, someone's temperature may rise. Do not escalate anything - an argument or even a simple misunderstanding could spiral into some kind of long-standing grudge.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — A little self-indulgence could make you feel better if you feel down. Enjoy a slightly guilty pleasure that you can share with friends. You can be generous and forgiving toward loved ones even when they challenge your patience.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Get going while the going is good. You and your loved ones might be riding high on the wings of romantic harmony. You may need to be more supportive than usual when someone is burdened by weighty problems.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Steer clear of disagreements even if the dispute would likely be quickly forgiven and forgotten. An argument could have repercussions that you cannot anticipate. Coworkers may not be amused by any antics today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Protect yourself. Put valuables in a safe place and use secure passwords. Making a profit could be difficult so steer clear of new investments and risky ventures. Focus on existing projects but do not embark on anything new.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — You may feel lost in the crowd. There might be numerous cross currents to deal with when you are in a group setting. Avoid distractions, ignoring responsibilities would be likely to cause some disapproval.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — What comes around goes around. Your kindness and thoughtfulness may seem unimportant to you but could make someone's day. Hold off on making major decisions and enjoy familiar faces and places.

USA on brink of clinching spot in 2023 World Cup

BY TIM REYNOLDS
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

The U.S. (7-1 in qualifying) can clinch a berth in next year's World Cup with a win Friday, when it hosts Brazil (5-3) in Washington. The national team will be wearing the nation's colors in the nation's capital on Veterans Day, with a chance to lock up one of the 32 spots for the tournament to be played next summer in the Philippines, Japan and Indonesia.

For the U.S., qualifying started nearly a full year ago in late November. For some teams in the FIBA Americas region, it started in April 2021.

It's been a long road, but Jim Boylen and the Americans are finally in position to clinch.

"It's never easy," said Boylen, who has coached the eight previous U.S. qualifying games — all held in two-game windows, often with a different roster each time. "Expect the unexpected. Expect to make adjustments. You just roll with it, keep it simple. I believe we have to be superior at the defensive end of the floor. You hope shots go in, but we have to defend and rebound. That's what we can control."

The World Cup provides the most direct path for teams to qualify for the 2024 Paris Olympics. The Americans have used primarily G League players in qualifying games; those players know top NBA players will take their roster spots in the World Cup and the Olympics.

"It's very humbling when we have repeat guys and they said, 'Yeah, Coach, I loved it and I want to be part of it,' " Boylen said. "It's really hard. It's almost a thankless job. If we win, nobody talks about it and if we lose, it's on the ticker. But I don't sell it like that. I sell it as, in the last 30 years, there are 293 guys who have worn the senior men's national jersey. They're part of the most elite group of guys in the history of the game. People don't realize that."

The Americans have used 37 different players so far in the qualifying cycle. That number will rise Friday; only five players on the roster for both the Brazil game and Monday's game against Colombia have appeared in 2023 qualifying.

Langston Galloway, DaQuan Jeffries, David Stockton, Will Davis II and Michael Frazier II all have played with the U.S. previously.

Louisville carries momentum into No. 12 Clemson

BY PETE IACOBELLI
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEMSON, S.C. — Louisville is loaded with confidence from its four-game win streak behind talented quarterback Malik Cunningham.

And then there's Clemson, which after a promising start is suddenly filled with questions about its once dominant defense and an offense struggling to put up points.

The 12th-ranked Tigers (8-1, 6-0 Atlantic Coast Conference) hope they, and passer DJ Uiagalelei, find their way back to their early season form when they face Louisville (6-3, 3-3) on Saturday.

Clemson is coming off a demoralizing, 35-14 loss at Notre Dame where there were few positive. The Fighting Irish scored off a blocked punt, ran in a 96-yard pick six and used a forceful run game to roll over Clemson's normally solid defense.

"We made it to week 10 without a loss and we had a bad day," Tigers coach Dabo Swinney said. "Nobody wins every game forever. You regroup, you have the right perspective because if you don't so much gets into kids' heads."

Swinney and his staff vowed to get the players' minds back on winning against a Cardinals' team on roll.

Cunningham, the dynamic quarterback compared to Louisville's Heisman Trophy winner Lamar Jackson, has thrown for 510 yards the past three games with five touchdowns and an interception. He and the Cardinals are eager to end the program's 0-7 run against Clemson.

Louisville coach Scott Satterfield knows that's far easier imagined than accomplished.

"They have a 38-game home winning streak, we know that," Satterfield said. "It's obviously a tough place to go play and try to get a win. We'll have to prepare for that, particularly on offense."

Satterfield was not concerned about Cunningham hurting his hand in a 34-10 win.

Clemson's defense knows it's in for a challenge at slowing Cunningham. "You give him a little bit of daylight, he can take it to the crib," Clemson defensive tackle Tyler Davis said. "It's definitely going to be a great matchup."

CLEMSON QBS

Starter DJ Uiagalelei has been replaced by freshman backup Cade Klubnik the past two games after a stellar start to the season. Klubnik rallied the Tigers from 11 points down to beat Syracuse 27-21 on Oct. 22. But Klubnik had an interception that led to a Notre Dame touchdown last week. Uiagalelei is expected to start, but Swinney has said if he can't perk up his play "someone else" must go in.

ONE MORE SCORE

Cunningham needs one more touchdown to become Louisville's career leader in TDs accounted for. He's tied with Lamar Jackson at 119, including 70 passing after tossing three TD passes last week. The senior is tied for 15th in FBS with 11 TDs rushing.

OUT FOR TIGERS

Clemson goes into this one missing two key performers, one each on offense or defense. The Tigers will be without receiver Beaux Collins, who leads the team with five touchdown catches. Collins suffered a shoulder injury in the loss at Notre Dame. Defensive end Xavier Thomas, who missed the season's first five games, is out for the year after re-injuring a foot.

GROUND IT OUT

Louisville ranks 25th nationally in rushing at 201.7 yards per game.

Last week marked its third-highest output this season, led by Tiyon Evans' 126 yards on 10 carries including a 71-yard TD.

Jawhar Jordan added 17 carries for 117 yards and gave the Cardinals their first pair of 100-yard rushers since Sept. 2, 2012 against Kentucky.

Evans' 495 yards rushing would rank seventh in the ACC, but hasn't reached the 75% participation threshold for inclusion.

PRESSURE MASTERS

Louisville won without a sack or takeaway for the first time since September 2002 but still leads the ACC with 33 sacks. That total is tied for second nationally.

Linebacker YaYa Diaby (6.5) leads four Cardinals among the top 20 in the conference.

They'll face a Clemson squad that allows just two per contest.

Snyder, Commanders, NFL, Goodell are sued by DC AG

BY STEPHEN WHYNO
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Washington Commanders owner Dan Snyder and NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell were sued by the District of Columbia on Thursday, accused of colluding to deceive fans by lying about an inquiry into "sexual misconduct and a persistently hostile work environment" within the team.

The individual club and the league as a whole were also named in the consumer protection civil lawsuit, which D.C. Attorney General Karl Racine said was based on his office's investigation that began in the fall of 2021.

Racine said the defendants jointly "misled the public" about the contents of, and procedure surrounding lawyer Beth Wilkinson's examination of the team's workplace culture that began in 2020. His office seeks a court order that will force the league to release Wilkinson's findings.

"For years, the team and its owner have caused very real and very serious harm and then lied about it to dodge accountability," Racine said, also pointing a finger at Goodell and the NFL. "They did all of this to hide the truth, protect their images and let the profits continue to roll."

Racine said that even though the team practices in Virginia and plays its games in Maryland, it is strongly connected to Washington and violated D.C. consumers' rights. Racine said the capital city's Consumer Protection Procedures Act provides for fines of up to $5,000 per lie — which his office estimated could result in millions of dollars in penalties.

Asked about a parallel review into the Commanders' finances and withholding money from season-ticket holders, Racine said, "There'll be more news on that next week." The U.S. House Committee for Oversight and Reform, which has one of a handful of other investigations into Snyder, referred a case about the club's potential financial improprieties to the Federal Trade Commission in April, citing questionable business practices related to ticket revenue.

NFL spokesman Brian McCarthy said Wilkinson's investigation was thoroughly and comprehensively conducted, the league publicly released a summary and imposed a record-setting fine of $10 million on the team and its ownership.

"We reject the legally unsound and factually baseless allegations made today by the D.C. Attorney General against the NFL and Commissioner Goodell and will vigorously defend against those claims," McCarthy wrote in an email.

Lawyers representing the Commanders said Snyder and his wife and co-owner, Tanya, acknowledged an unacceptable workplace culture more than two years ago and "have apologized many times for allowing that to happen."

"We agree with AG Racine on one thing: the public needs to know the truth," Commanders counsel John Brownlee and Stuart Nash said in a statement sent through a team spokesperson. "Although the lawsuit repeats a lot of innuendo, half-truths and lies, we welcome this opportunity to defend the organization — for the first time — in a court of law and to establish, once and for all, what is fact and what is fiction."

The filing Thursday in D.C. Superior Court says Snyder "cultivated an environment ... that glorifies sexual harassment and punishes victims for speaking out." According to the complaint, team "employees say the workplace was 'like the mafia' ... creating a culture of fear and paranoia."

"The misconduct did not just go to the top; it originated there," the court filing says, noting that a former long-time team executive said employees referred to Snyder as the "Chief Harassing Officer."

The complaint outlines ways in which the attorney general's office says Snyder has been accused of "further cultivating the team's culture of sexual harassment," such as bringing "women believed to be sex workers to work-related events," overseeing the team's cheerleading program and exercising "control over everything, from which cheerleading candidates made the cut, to which photos were used in the cheerleader calendar, to how revealing the cheerleading uniforms would be."

The team remains the subject of multiple other ongoing investigations, including by the attorney general of Virginia, Congress and the NFL. Goodell has said there is no timetable for when former U.S. Attorney Mary Jo White's review on behalf of the league will be completed.

Racine said the D.C. attorney general's office will issue subpoenas and seek testimony under oath. He took a shot at Snyder's virtual testimony with the House Oversight Committee by saying depositions are "not likely to occur on a yacht but in a conference room in the District of Columbia."

The Snyders announced last week they hired Bank of America Securities to look into selling part or all of the team. A team spokesperson said they were "exploring all options" in regards to the organization that Forbes values at $5.6 billion.

"If he sells the team," Racine said, "he's still a defendant."

Racine said the lawsuit is happening in civil court because his office does not have criminal jurisdiction on the matter. He is leaving office Jan. 2 and expects successor Brian Schwalb to continue the case.

Lawyers Lisa Banks and Debra Katz, who represent more than 40 former team employees, said the civil complaint "is further evidence of what we've long known: that both the Commanders and the NFL have engaged in deception and lies designed to conceal the team's decades of sexual harassment and abuse, which has impacted not only the victims of that abuse, but also consumers."

Former club employees Megan Imbert and Melanie Coburn attended the news conference, and Imbert said she and others who worked for the team have been seeking accountability and transparency.

Tipton scores 21,Bellarmine spoils Cardinals opener

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE — Garrett Tipton had 21 points, Bash Wieland added 13 and Bellarmine survived a late Louisville rally to stun the Cardinals 67-66 on Wednesday night and spoil Kenny Payne's debut as coach.

Facing Louisville for the first time since 2006, the Knights trailed 15-14 before scoring 11 consecutive points for the lead. They never trailed after that and led by 14 late in the half.

The Cardinals slowly fought back to within 59-55 with 6:41 remaining before Bellarmine answered with an 8-0 spurt to stretch its lead back to 12. Louisville didn't quit and scored 11 unanswered points, including Mike James' 3-pointer, to get within 67-66 with 1:02 left.

But Louisville missed several chances to take the lead, starting with El Ellis' missed free throw with 43 seconds left. Bellarmine couldn't take advantage either, but the Cardinals continued to squander opportunities in the final eight seconds as Kamari Lands and Roosevelt Wheeler each missed shots. The horn sounded before Ellis got off a final long shot that bounced off the side of the basket.

"We were desperate and we knew we had to make a run when we were down 10," James said. "Give them credit. They hit some tough shots, they ran their offense based on what they know."

Tipton, a fifth-year senior, made 9 of 16 from the field while Wieland converted 11 of 12 free throws. Ben Johnson made two 3-pointers for eight points for Bellarmine, which made 7 of 15 3s with six players hitting at least one from behind the arc.

Jae'Lyn Withers had 17 points, Ellis 16 and James 14 for Louisville, which shot 42% (22 of 52) and hit 11 of 28 from long range.

Louisville is transitioning under Payne, a member of its 1986 national championship team and former longtime assistant at rival Kentucky. He replaced Chris Mack in March after two seasons with the NBA's New York Knicks.

Bellarmine was coming off an Atlantic Sun Conference championship last season but was ineligible for the automatic NCAA Tournament bid because of the four-year transitional period as a Division I school.

The Knights lost a lot of offense from last season, but shot well above 50% for much of the game before finishing at 48%.

"It's special for the players," said Bellarmine coach Scottie Davenport, who went on a rant about the tournament exclusion but added that he was glad players stuck around the program. "I stood in the back corner of the locker room and just watched them. They didn't want to hear what I had to say."

Jokic overcomes foul trouble, Nuggets rally past Pacers

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Nikola Jokic spent the first three quarters watching his teammates do the dirty work. When he finally returned early in the fourth, the two-time NBA MVP cleaned up.

Limited by foul trouble, Jokic scored 24 points in 21 minutes and helped the Denver Nuggets overcome an 18-point deficit in the second half to rally past the Indiana Pacers 122-199 on Wednesday night.

"We did enough on defense," guard Jamal Murray said after scoring 18 points and playing a key role in the comeback. "I think they got a lot of fast-break points in the first half. We limited that in the second half and just contested every shot and we were able to get going on offense, too."

The biggest obstacle for Denver was Jokic's foul trouble.

He picked up four fouls in less than 18 minutes, then was whistled for No. 5 just 58 seconds into the second half.

He spent the next 13 minutes on the bench as the Nuggets' 3-point shooters finally started fighting back from an 87-69 deficit.
